HONGKONG, SEPTEMBER 27TH, 1878.

Some months ago His Excellency the Go-VERNOR announced that he was endeavouring to elaborate a scheme for inducing Chinese merchants to bring their families here and make Hongkong their permanent home, instead of maintaining their family houses on the mainland. This announcement was hailed with satisfaction in all quarters, although it stances which militate against the bringing about of so desirable an object." The advantages which would accrue from the presence in the colony of a settled population of the higher classes of Chinese have been commented on before and are too obvious to need repetition. What shape His Excellency's scheme took, if he ever succeeded in claborating it, has never been announced. European community would willingly have seen many concessions made with the object of inducing the more respectable Chinese to settle amongst us. Concessions made to the criminal classes, however, could only result in removing the attainment of this object still further into futurity, while at the same time it has underwined the feeling of security which the Chinese already resident here enjoyed until our present Governor commenced so actively to interfere in the criminal administration of the Colony. TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS. SIR,-I am glad to see by the papers that the residents of this colony are beginning to realize the fact that if they require protection, they must look to the combined action of the colonists We hear that during the changes involved by and not to the Government. When Sir Richard law prescribed and inflicted was no light thing. Now what was the natural conseopenos of his able administration? It was to reduce crime and render, life and property in this Colony secure. As soon as things had improved, Sir Richard left the Colony and the reins of Government fell into the hands of General Whitfeild, and during the time he administered the Government, orimes increased, in consequence of the mild and simple-character of the administrator, and in itters became as serious as they were before B. Richard-had brought affairs to the satisfactory condition to which I have alluded. When Sir Arthur Kennedy arrived, things were in such an unsatisfactory condition as to call for immediate steps to be taken by him to strike terror into the criminal class. He set about this unpleasant task with a quiet determination; the good result was soon noticeable in the visible decrease of cases on the criminal calendar and in the charge sheets of the Police Courts: The police were not humpored with annecessary restrictions, and order and protection to life were again restored. Things remained in this happy state until the arrival of our present Governor; he, without any experi-
